

MERCER UNIVERSITY	SECTION:
Policies and Procedures Manual Department of Information Technology
SUBJECT: Access and Use Policy for Guest Computer Lab Users	EFFECTIVE: July 1, 2019

Mercer University maintains computer facilities and Internet access for its primary missions of teaching, education, research, and public service. You have been provided a temporary guest account in order to participate in a Mercer event. Computer and Internet access provided by this temporary account should only be used for the purposes of the event you are attending. In addition, the following rules of access and use apply:

No user shall attempt to access any service or resource to which they have not been explicitly authorized access by the appropriate University authority. Users of the University network shall not perform any activity, which disrupts network or server resources, impedes or prevents network or server access by others, or attempt to access private data of others. Examples include, but are not limited to, port scanning software, packet sniffers, mail bombing, ping flooding, SMURF attacks, and/or SYN flooding.

Other violations of Internet use include, but are not limited to, accessing, downloading, uploading, saving, receiving, or sending material that includes sexually explicit content or other material using vulgar, sexist, racist, threatening, violent, or defamatory language.

I, _____ agree to abide by Mercer University’s Access and Use policy. (Printed name)
